Full Question I have heard that the teaching on Mary as Mediatrix of All Graces is official Catholic doctrine but not a dogma of faith. I am not clear on the difference between doctrine and dogma.

What is the difference between doctrine and dogma

Doctrine vs. Dogma. The same is indicated a few canons later: Can. 752 Although not an assent of faith, a religious submission of the intellect and will must be given to a doctrine which the Supreme Pontiff or the college of bishops declares concerning faith or morals when they exercise the authentic magisterium,...

Dogma, Doctrine, and Theology: What Are They? â€“ Jimmy Akin

Doctrine is teachings or beliefs taught by the Magisterium of the Church. All dogmas are doctrines, but not all doctrines are dogmas. This is the main difference between dogma and doctrine. What is Dogma. Dogma is a subset of doctrine. It includes the divinely revealed truth, declared as such by the infallible teaching authority of the Church.

Difference Between Dogma and Doctrine | Meaning

Difference Between Doctrine and Dogma. Doctrines are teachings of the church that include the fundamental truths as well as those teachings that are not central to the existence of faith or the church. Some doctrines may not be essential, but they are nonetheless important in holding the rubric of the faith together in a cohesive manner.
